

THE ASU IS YOUR UNION

The Australian Services Union is one of the largest unions in Australia, with more than 140,000 members across the country.

Our members work in professional, customer service and office support occupations in both the public and private sectors, and are employed in call centres, airlines, local government, the energy industry, public and private health, universities and many other office environments.

ASU members are leading the way in improving job security, negotiating better pay increases, winning safer workplaces, and finding a better balance between work and family responsibilities.

ASU membership gives you access to our highly skilled Organisers, who can give you advice on a range of work related matters.

The ASU also has one of the strongest networks of trained Delegates and activists in the country, who can represent you on important local issues. Our Delegates give you a voice in the workplace, and a regular source of information and advice.

ASU membership also gives you access to many exclusive services and benefits. These include discounts on insurance, travel and accommodation, theme park tickets, electrical appliances, computer and internet packages, private health cover and much more.

And remember, membership fees are fully tax deductible.

For more information, contact your local ASU Delegate, or phone the union office on 3252 8666. You can also visit the ASU online at: www.qld.asu.net.au
